

Camasta to Teach Wine Course

One of the most successful and longest running Adult School Programs has been offering adult education courses for the past 71 years at James Caldwell High School. This spring, 40 courses will be offered remotely, and 20 courses will be offered in person, with limited enrollment. Most of the online courses begin the week of March 22 and most of the in-person courses will begin the week of April 12. One of the longest running courses, now in its 57th year, is Wine Tasting, which is now taught by Italian Tribune columnist Carl Camasta. In this course, participants will learn to appreciate wines from Italy, the United States, France, Germany, Spain and also the southern hemisphere. Tasting of wines is an integral part of this class. The former instructor of the course, Dan Kifner, said of the offering, “This is the longest continually running wine class in the State of New Jersey. Throughout the years, the course has changed and evolved, but one thing remains the same, the class is insightful and a lot of fun.” A total of 60 exciting courses are offered and some that will be offered this spring include Boating Safety License, CPR/ AED, Getting Started with Zoom Video Conferencing, Cutting the Cord on Cable, Managing Stress and Anxiety, Happiness 101, Italian I & III and Sign Language I & II. New courses offered this spring include Candle Making Basics, Creative Events & Party Planning Workshop, Italian III, Strategies for Adults with ADHD, Integrative Medicine Workshops, Social Media Advantages and Uses and Italian Genealogical Records Research. The website is www.cwcboe.org/continuing and courses can be paid with a credit card online or you can print the registration form and mail in a check. Sign up today to stimulate your mind and body and join the fun in this long running successful adult school.
