These shall take into account class size, school capacity, transportation, and walking considerations. Pupils shall attend the school in the attendance area in which they live, with the following exceptions:

Elementary Schools

School planning and operational costs require that once a child is in attendance, he or she shall stay at the same school for the remainder of the school year unless the family moves to another attendance area.

The Building Principal(s) will decide all questions of which school the pupils shall attend when a move within the district occurs.

When re-districting occurs, the Board of Education will at that time make appropriate regulations regarding attendance areas for pupils remaining in the school of original enrollment and other such matters.
